INTRODUCTION

The U.S. Macroeconomic Database Manual, Volume 1, is the first in a two-volume set which documents the data that comprise the U.S. Macroeconomic data set. The first volume describes the National Income and Product Accounts (NIPA), as published in the GDP advance release and in the Survey of Current Business.

The NIPA provides a detailed statistical series description of the U.S. economy. They depict in dollar terms the volume, composition, and use of the Nation's output and, therefore, makes it possible to trace long-term trends and current fluctuations in economic activity.

The data that measure the Nation's total output are estimated from two principal points of view:

- The value of goods and services produced by the economy - referred to as the product side of the account;
- The costs incurred and types of income earned in producing those goods and services - referred to as the income side.

The product side is divided into major markets for the output of the economy: consumer purchases, business investment, net exports and government purchases. The income side summarizes the wages and salaries and other forms of income, indirect taxes, and capital consumption allowances generated in the production process. Because the NIPA offers a total picture, these accounts are basic tools used in analyzing past and current performance of the economy and also in forecasting future economic developments. Furthermore, this quantitative framework makes these accounts of great importance in the formulation of national economic policies.

<sup>1</sup> Effective December 10, 2003, the price index used to estimate chained-dollar gross value added of nonfinancial corporate business has been revised to reflect the 2000 reference year. Effective with the estimates schedules for release in July 2004, the current-dollar value will be deflated by a revised chain-type price index calculated using gross value added price indexes for each nonfinancial industry.

<sup>2</sup> Chained-dollar consumption of fixed capital of nonfinancial corporate business is calculated as the product of the chain-type quantity index and the 2000 current-dollar value of the corresponding series, divided by 100.

<sup>3</sup> Chained-dollar net value added of nonfinancial corporate business is the difference between the gross value added and the consumption of fixed capital.

<sup>4</sup> The deflator for gross value added of nonfinancial corporate business divided by 100.
